On November 2nd, twenty five years ago, the CBC set out to provide Canadians with a broadcasting service which would link the nation from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The CBC has not only done this, but in keeping with the times has extended this service over the north country to the Arctic Ocean as well. And through the Northern Service, the CBC has worked to meet the needs of listeners "down north" including those who are at once the oldest and youngest of all Canadians, the Indian and the Eskimo. The response to broadcasts in Indian and Eskimo languages reveals how much this service is appreciated.

Turning to this Winter's program schedule, a number of adjustments and changes have had to be made since the appearance of our Summer Guide. "Northern Messenger", and the N.H.L. Hockey broadcasts return to their regular berths and preparations are being made to shortwave such events as the Grey Cup Game, the World Hockey Series, and the Stanley Cup finals.

Among the new programs, we would like to single out the "Road to the Yukon" series, and the Weekly News and Sports Review which includes "Northern Newsletter". As in the past, every attempt will be made to keep listeners up-to-date with coverage of highly topical events at home and overseas and to broadcast programs of such notable interest as "North On The C. D. Howe".

We hope you find listening enjoyable this winter. If you can, why not write to us — the CBC Northern Service, P.O. Box 806, Ottawa. We welcome your comments.
